FIFTEEN NEW TEACHERS ON FACULTY OF DANA JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL THIS YEAR

Rules On Registration Listed By Principal Clarence Swenson

(By Principal Swenson)

Classes at Dana Junior high school will begin at 8:35 a.m. next Monday, September 11. Students who attended the school last year will report to their old home rooms to receive their program slips. Entering seventh graders from elementary schools in the district will be directed to various rooms by signs in the corridors according to an alphabetical arrangement. New students from outside the district who have registered this week will report to the cafeteria, Room 3, for their program slips. New students from other outside districts or cities who have not already registered are requested to wait until Monday afternoon and register between 1:30 and 3:30 to avoid a long wait, since counselors will be very busy in the morning.

Only seventh and eighth graders in general, will register at Dana Junior high school. Ninth graders will be enrolled at Point Loma high school, with the exception of one small class of students for whom special arrangements are being made to complete eighth and ninth grade this year at Dana.

Because of the large increase in enrollment 10 additional teachers will join the Dana staff. Fifteen new names appear on the faculty roster since five of last year's staff are not returning. Mrs. Mary K. Hobbs has requested a year's leave of absence and her place will be taken by Mrs. Lola Melton, former teacher at Brownwood, Texas. She will work through all departments of the school to assist teachers whose students have special reading problems. Four reading consultants have been added by the San Diego city schools this year to serve the various secondary schools in the reading program and Dana is fortunate to be included in this service.

Mrs. Bertha Tweed and Jack White have been assigned to Dana one day each week as visiting teachers to assist with attendance and adjustment problems. Mrs. Lillian Fitzpatrick, English teacher, will assist Cleon Davies part time as counselor this year. Mrs. Ura Crawford, school nurse, will have additional time at Dana this year for her nursing duties due to the increased enrollment.

Beautification of the grounds has begun, with the planting of shrubbery on the north and east sides of the building. Grass will be planted soon in the area along Macaulay street and the contract has been let for a large area of "black top" paving on the athletic field. LOCAL OFFICERS ANSWER 493 CALLS DURING AUGUST

Ocean Beach policemen answered 493 calls during August, handled 107 first aid cases, made 133 misdemeanor arrests and 11 felony arrests, and recovered property valued at $8,080, including 12 stolen cars, according to the monthly report of Desk Sergeant R. J. Karrow. Only three burglaries were reported in the entire district covered by this station during the month. One accidental death, that of a drowning at Mission Beach, was recorded, the date being Aug. 19.

Suffers Rattlesnake Bite

Rodney Wheelock, 28, Ocean Beach, Sunday evening suffered his eighth bite by a rattlesnake. He is keeper of a den of these snakes at the Mission Beach amusement center, and the bite, which was on his thumb, was serious enough to require emergency treatment. Ocean Beach officers rushed him to the county hospital.

Two 13-year-old boys were nabbed Saturday evening at the Yacht club shore on San Diego bay, Ocean Beach police making the arrest as the boys came ashore from a row boat which was found to contain considerable loot taken from a couple of nearby boats that had been ransacked, according to the officers' report. The lads were turned over to the juvenile court officials.

DONATIONS TO CENTER DEEMED AN INVESTMENT TO BE MADE BUT ONCE

(By the Committee)

"Things don't just happen"—someone must do some dreaming, someone must do some thinking, someone must do some planning, someone must do some working, someone must do some giving; if someone is to do some playing, if someone is to do some improving, if someone is to do some better living. Is that somebody you?

Ten thousand dollars is a big figure for this community to raise for the community recreation center, but it will get smaller as you give your money to this cause. When that somebody is your boy or girl or your neighbor's boy or girl who will benefit from this project, then you will surely want to give sacrificially, for this is not a continuous gift, it is an investment made only once. Give your money now by calling Mrs. Muchmore, B-4725, or Mrs. Mead, B-4827.

Local Sea Life Described To Kiwanis Club

Ocean Beach Kiwanians heard an informative and interesting talk on sea life from Turner B. Kline of East San Diego, formerly of the Balboa Park aquarium staff, whose hobby is sea life. The talk was before the club at its first meeting in September, held Tuesday evening, and also at its first meeting in the new quarters at the Ocean Beach Women's clubhouse. Mr. Kline was introduced by John A. Titlow, program chairman for the evening.

Kline showed most of the preserved specimens of sea life about which he spoke, including the spiny lobster, various kinds of star fish and various kinds of abalone. He also described the shark and various kinds of sting ray.

Regard to the abalone, he said, there are plenty of specimens right here at the local beach. The red abalone is the largest variety of this family of sea animals, he said. Average age of the abalone he opined to be 200 years. He showed one shell he believed to be as old as the city of San Diego. Of the various kinds the best eating is the abalone with pink colored meat, he said. He indicated that there are enough specimens of sea life close to Ocean Beach to keep anyone with that hobby interested and occupied in his leisure hours.

Officers Nominated

The balloting for officers of the club for the coming year resulted in the nomination of Jerry Sullivan and Burritt S. Mills for president, Martin Murphy and Mills for vice president and Henry Holman and Mills for treasurer.

C. OF C. WILL TAKE UP ILLEGAL BICYCLE RIDING ON OCEAN BEACH STREETS

The Chamber of Commerce will meet at 8 o'clock at the Log Cabin in back of the Methodist church in regular session, Monday, Sept. 11. There will be no dinner at this meeting.

Bicycle riding on Ocean Beach sidewalks in violation of city ordinance is one new matter to be brought before the meeting, The News is informed.

HONOR ROLL MONEY STOLEN AT LOCAL CAFE

Setting a new low in petty thievery here, some miscreant Friday night stole the honor roll money, amounting to about $5, from the bottle container that was in use at the Cache of Sweets.

Election of the officers will be held on Tuesday, Sept 26.

Mrs. C. W. Early, women's club president, brought greetings and welcome to the club, to start the evening session.

Visitors were W. N. Bamford of Ocean Beach and Cecil Voss of Detroit, and Richard Barbour of San Diego club was a visiting Kiwanian.

At next week's meeting, Sullivan will be program chairman and Wm P. Brotherton of the Ryan Aeronautical Co. will be the speaker on the subject of "The Story Behind the Industrial Record of Aviation."

Sept. 19 Set As Date to Finish Drive For $10,000

(By the Committee)

The Community-Civic committee continues to campaign to raise funds for a memorial recreation center in Ocean Beach. The committee has every reason to be encouraged as final efforts are made to complete this financial campaign by Sept. 19, at which time a recreation rally will be held at the Ocean Beach elementary school at 7:45 p.m. A special effort is now being made to reach the goal of $10,000. We have almost reached it, but we all must give. We must give sacrifically if needs be to make possible real success—not just for ourselves, but also for those who follow in our footsteps. We do not care to experience failure when we are so near to success. Some have already given, for which we are truly appreciative and grateful, but to reach our goal it is necessary that all of us in our community give something.

The monies collected in this campaign will be used to help our building get started, but it will do more than that—it will help to give our families an opportunity to have a place to play together to be helping to form good mental and spiritual discipline in order to learn how to improve our family unit in society and to make good citizens of us all. Millions of dollars are being spent to combat crime, yes, and to reform and rehabilitate criminals. Millions of dollars are being spent each year in the various forms of entertainment such as movie and legitimate theatres, the circus and cheap carnivals. Millions of dollars are spent to buy chewing gum, candy, popcorn and peanuts, not to mention coca cola and seven-up. All these are no doubt necessary and important, but hasn't the time come for us to spend some of our money to teach our youngsters the meaning and significance of rules and regulations by playing according to the rules of the game; to respect each other by learning to play fair and square and as they grow to manhood, help them to enjoy the privileges of obeying the laws of our community, city and country because it is for their good and gives the maximum of right to truly enjoy the freedom of our United States. We hope our parents will catch the concept that our committee has endeavored to instill in the minds and hearts of our people and respond willingly to investing a substantial sum in this kind of community betterment.

BUILDING CONTROL FOR OCEAN BEACH GIVEN APPROVAL

Final approval by the San Diego city planning commission was given Wednesday to the petition of Ocean Beach property owners for architectural control over building construction in Ocean Beach, at a public hearing held in the Civic Center building. About 15 Ocean Beach public spirited citizens, led by John A. Titlow, attended the hearing and were pleased to find that no protest was registered against the proposal. The commission then gave unanimous consent to the requested municipal control of buildings.

Next step will be the passage of a city ordinance specifying the district to be included and the restrictions imposed, following which these regulations will be in effect in Ocean Beach.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Nazi Armies Fall Back in France; Hitler's Hold on Balkans Shaken; Lend-Lease Totals 28 Billion

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Carried on ox-carts, wounded Allied soldiers arrive at Myitkyina airstrip, Burma, for transfer to hospital plane.

EUROPE:
Nazis Pull Back

As fast-moving Allied forces pushed the Nazis back throughout all of France, German spokesmen hinted that Hitler's high command planned a withdrawal to the Reich frontier so as to concentrate the greatest number of men on a short line.

But even as the Nazis fell back, swift armored thrusts by the U. S., British and French continued to slash at the harassed enemy's flanks and threaten his encirclement from the rear, and clouds of Allied planes roared over the battle-lines to dip low and gun the retreating German columns.

With the bulk of their forces crowded in the area immediately north and south of Paris, the Germans put up their stiffest rearguard resistance in this region. In southern France, Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh army fanned out quickly in all directions, with only scattered bands of enemy troops standing up briefly to slow the Allied drive.

After capture of the great French Mediterranean port of Marseille, American engineers went to work quickly to restore facilities damaged by the Germans and enable the Allies to funnel supplies quickly to their armies in the south. Use of Marseille's installations would relieve the troublesome practice of landing supplies on the sandy beaches in shallow-draft craft.

Armistice arrangements for the German evacuation of Paris having fallen through, Free French armored columns were compelled to fight through a screen of Nazi defenders to liberate the city, with heavy U. S. howitzers backing up Gen. Charles de Gaulle's troops, and helping to break enemy resistance. Occupation of Paris with its 3,000,000 people in need of food and fuel for utilities, posed a supply problem for the Allies.

Turbulent Balkans

With formation of a peace government in Rumania, Adolf Hitler's unsteady grip on the turbulent Balkans grew unsteadier, with Rumania's defection threatening to topple Germany's whole southeastern front.

As young King Michael announced his country's willingness to accept Allied peace terms, Russia called for Rumania's expulsion of German troops from her homeland, or a war against Hungary to clear the latter from Transylvania, as the price of armistice terms.

Even as Rumania acted to quit Germany, Bulgarian peace proposals reportedly were forwarded to the Allies, who were said to have insisted upon the Bulgars' withdrawal from all occupied Grecian and Yugoslav territory as one of the armistice terms.

To prevent any peace factions from obtaining a grip in Hungary, the Nazi-inspired regime dissolved all political parties, including the conservative elements.

Russ Pressure

Figuring in the Balkan countries' swing toward the Allied camp was the Russians' power-house drive bearing down from northern Rumania.

As the Reds hurled their might at the enemy lines, they bored down on the Galati Gap between the Transylvanian Alps and Black sea, barring the way to the heart of Rumania and the Ploesti oil fields. From this region, there was short going before the Reds would reach the Bulgarian frontier.

POSTWAR PEACE:
Powers Confer

Meeting in the quaint, old Dumbarton Oaks estate in Washington, D. C., representatives of the U. S., Britain and Russia began momentous conferences on preserving postwar peace, with emphasis on the need of force as an ultimate resource. China was to join the conference after the Reds had finished their talks, since Russia is not at war with the Japanese and is unwilling to discuss repressive measures against them.

John F. Dulles

Accepting the invitation of Secretary of State Cordell Hull to discuss postwar peace plans, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey sent John Foster Dulles, his advisor on foreign affairs, to the capital to consult on the conferences. Hull issued his invitation after Dewey expressed concern that the major powers might overlook the interests of the smaller nations.

Although the conferees were said to agree on the principle of employing force to suppress future aggression, plans under discussion called for the use of force only after measures for peaceful settlement had failed.

ANTI-TRUST:
Railroads Named

Charging maintenance of noncompetitive rates, prevention of improvements and facilities of western lines, and suppressing development of other forms of transportation, the government filed an antitrust suit against the Association of American railroads; the Western Association of Railway Executives; 47 railroads; and the investment houses of J. P. Morgan and Company and Kuhn, Loeb and Company.

Focusing its attention on western rail operations, the government declared that establishment of higher rates in that territory than in the east placed it at a competitive disadvantage, retarding its economic growth. The government also claimed that movement of perishable commodities has been delayed by unwillingness to speed up schedules, and efforts have been made to stunt the development of truck and water transport.

In naming J. P. Morgan and Company and Kuhn, Loeb and Company in the suit, the government charged that they controlled major railroad financing and possessed substantial industrial interests in the East.

LEND-LEASE:
Aid Mounts

Declaring that continuation of lend-lease was essential for speedy victory until both Germany and Japan were brought to their knees, President Roosevelt revealed that the U. S. share of such assistance approximated 28 billion dollars up to July 1, while other countries contributed in excess of 3 billion.

Of the 28 billion dollars, Britain received over 9 billion; Australia and New Zealand, 1 billion; Africa, the Middle East and Mediterranean, 3 billion; Russia, almost 6 billion; China and India, 1½ billion, and Latin America, 172 million.

As an indication of the gigantic contribution U. S. industry has made to the war, figures showed that this country lend-leased 11,000 planes and 300,000 trucks and other vehicles to Russia; 6,000 planes and 9,900 tanks to Great Britain, and 4,800 planes, 51,100 tanks and 73,000 trucks and other vehicles to the Mediterranean area.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

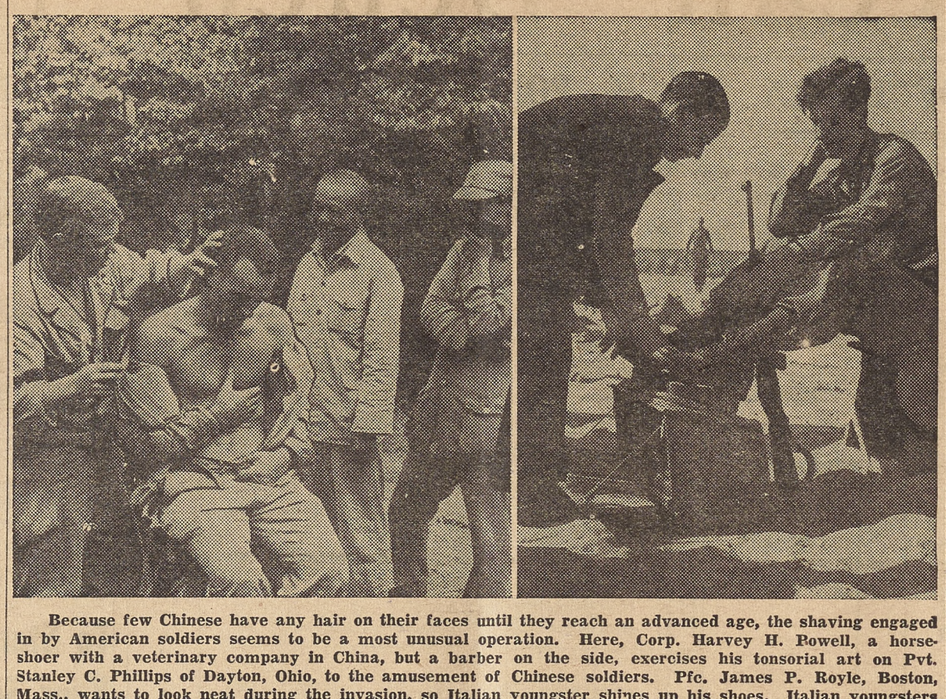
USE OF AUTOS: A recent survey discloses that 74 per cent of car owners are driving their autos less than half the peacetime mileage. This reduction has come about through shorter and fewer trips rather than the laying up of cars for the duration. Gasoline and tire rationing have combined with patriotic motives to lessen car use, the survey continued.

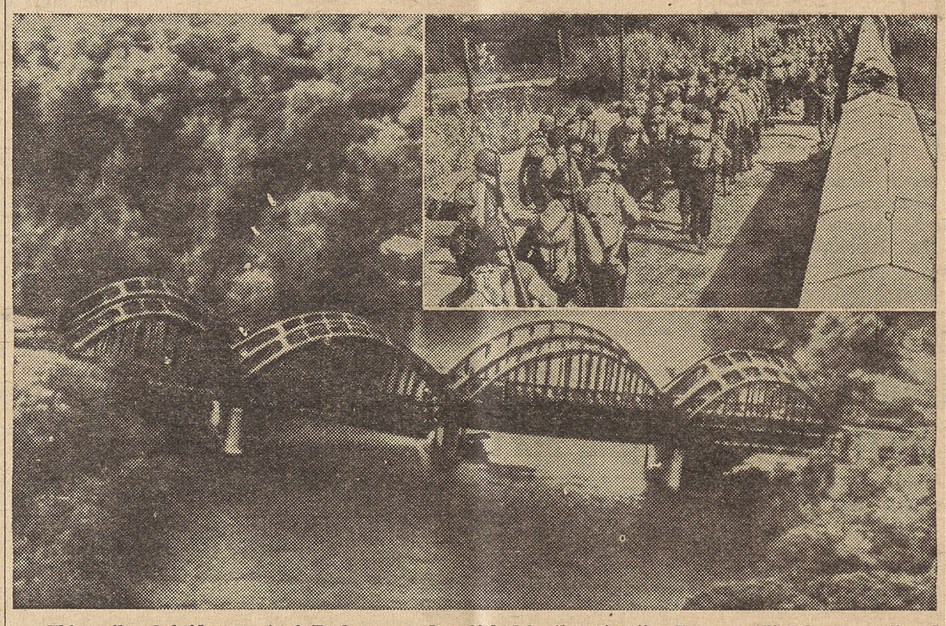
TRAP SHOOTING: Capt. Joseph Hiestand of Hillsboro, Ohio, has once again won the North American clay target championship in the 45th Grand American Trapshooting tournament held at Vandalia, Ohio. This is the fourth time he has captured the award, the previous occasions being in 1935, '36, and '38. He broke 200 straight targets to lead the field of entrants.

Shaves and Shines Given to Invasion Yanks



Because few Chinese have any hair on their faces until they reach an advanced age, the shaving engaged in by American soldiers seems to be a most unusual operation. Here, Corp. Harvey H. Powell, a horseshoer with a veterinary company in China, but a barber on the side, exercises his tonsorial art on Pvt. Stanley C. Phillips of Dayton, Ohio, to the amusement of Chinese soldiers. Pfc. James P. Royle, Boston, Mass., wants to look neat during the invasion, so Italian youngster shines up his shoes. Italian youngsters soon found that they could earn good money with a shoe shining kit in almost any camp.

American Troops Continue Advances Into France



This railroad bridge, east of Toulon, was demolished by the retreating Huns as Allied forces continued to push steadily inland on the southern coast of France. The Nazis left little in the way of railroad tracks or bridges or highway for the advancing Allied armies. Engineer units were soon able, however, to repair or rebuild bridges and roads so that operations were not materially slowed down. The Yanks march past an eight-foot steel and concrete wall that runs the length of a beach in southern France.

All They're Fit for Is Hanging

American soldiers examine pictures of high ranking Nazis discovered in a French hotel, formerly occupied by German officers. In nearly all former German officers' quarters captured by the Allies, large collections of photographs were found. In removing their personal effects they made no attempt to save photographs of Nazi leaders.

Hero of Children

French youngsters throng about Lieut. Gen. Omar Bradley, commander of U. S. forces in northern France, as he tours St. Brice. Any American soldier is a subject for hero worship with these children, a general is "something special."

Japanese Prisoners of Chinese

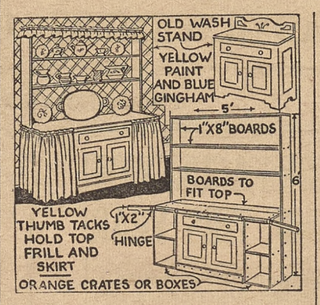
The picture of defeat, these Japanese soldiers who surrendered to the Chinese rather than be killed, are being led down to the Salween river, southwest China, to be ferried back to headquarters for questioning. They are only a small part of the prisoners who have been taken during the present Burma road campaign, which attests to its success.

Takes Small Army

Sergt. Alexander Balter of Pittsburgh, Pa., a mighty-talking fighting man. He smooth-talked 400 Nazis to surrender their three strong points on the outskirts of Brest.

It's Quite Simple to Expand That Old Wash Stand to Fit Large Space

By Ruth Wyeth Spears



IT IS easy enough to make a small serving table out of an old wash stand but, when there is a large wall space crying for an imposing piece of furniture and nothing but a small wash stand on hand, the problem is something else again. Here you see the solution.

The lower sketch shows how the carpenter work was done. Note the piece across the bottom of the stand to cover the irregular line, also the hinged arms so that the skirt may open out.

Committee Expresses Appreciation To Business Men Of Ocean Beach

(By the Committee)

What would a community do without the splendid cooperation of the business men, either the small independent merchant or the great chain store manager or both? Whenever any activity or project or cause is suggested or initiated, these strong and stalwart men are first thought of to contact for financial support and aid. Not only do they give financial assistance, but they also support the civic functions with their splendid leadership and fine ability.

In Ocean Beach we are especially privileged to have an exceptional group of business men who are always doing something for the community good because they themselves are good men. We are extremely fortunate in having this calibre of merchant in Ocean Beach. Let us not take them for granted and let us not assume on their benevolent giving, but let us rather appreciate more than ever these good merchants. Let us continue to support them, not only by purchasing certain articles that we need, but let us support them by showing a fine spirit of friendliness as we watch them at work, as we meet them on the street and if they do not have what you want and what you need, let us not embarrass ourselves by being quick to criticise and to complain. Let us not walk out of their stores muttering and mumbling to ourselves, grumbling and groaning under the burden of feeling neglected, but let us give them a friendly greeting and a warm and cordial welcome.

The Community-Civic committee wishes to express their appreciation for the splendid cooperation and support and sustaining influence of our merchants. We hope at a later time to list all of the men who made contributions to our recreation center for we want our people to know that they had a great part in helping us to realize the center.

WAR BONDS assure the things you want after victory!

THE RED CROSS IN OCEAN BEACH

By ONA F. PITCOCK

Hello everybody! Well, I am back on the job again. Am going to help with camp and hospital and hope to make a huge success with the cookies. Nothing is more enjoyed by our men in the hospitals than the cookies. Those in isolation wards, contagious wards and those just returning home from long duty overseas certainly enjoy home-made cookies, cup cakes or cakes. Wednesday will be cookie day and every woman who possibly can please send as many as possible. You can leave them with Mrs. Billups at 4264 Montalvo, at Mrs. H. B. Brewer's, 4721 Voltaire, or at 4769 Del Monte ave. As it is so hard to get gasoline we have had to make as few pick-up places as possible.

All wool and production work will be found at the Ocean Beach Women's clubhouse, corner Bacon and Muir sts. The clubhouse is open on Tuesdays. Call Mrs. Fried at B-9222 for further particulars. I have turned over my file of workers to her so please return your finished articles to the club house.

All donations and articles for camp and hospital bring to 4769 Del Monte. We are already working on the Christmas boxes. All articles for Christmas boxes must be new and about the same as last year. We have boxes here or you can bring your articles here. Don't forget our gift basket.

Thank you letter from Mrs. Nellie R. Bond, field director, and Mrs. Marie A. Baird, recreation worker of the San Diego Red Cross, follows:

"My dear Mrs. Pitcock:

"Again we are indebted to the Ocean Beach branch of the American Red Cross for birthday cakes and cookies. They always seem to arrive at a most important time. We hear of a birthday, and then the cakes come. What could be a finer combination of circumstances.

"We were sorry to hear of your recent illness and hope you are now on the road to recovery. Please extend our thanks to all the members who made these lovely cakes and cookies."

Let's give our boys a nice Christmas and hope and pray they will soon be home. Next week I will give you a list of articles for the boxes but you who take the morning paper will find a list there and also se Mrs. David A. Fraser who will work with neighborhood groups.

For any further information you can call B-5639.

Miss Nye asks that everyone give Christmas lights to send to our boys for their trees. If each one would give just one good bulb it would be such a help. They were only able to send enough for three trees last week. Please help.

Active Elementary Schools Last Year County Had 67

There were 67 active elementary school districts in San Diego county in 1943-44 and not one was suspended in 1942-43 California Taxpayers' association stated today, analyzing the adequacy of elementary school support in California counties.

Twenty-one elementary school districts in the county had fewer than 20 pupils in average daily attendance, the association stated.

The smallest elementary school district in the county, Borego with only five pupils in average daily attendance for 1942-43, received $1,625 from the state for 1943-44.

Biggest elementary district in the county, San Diego city unified, had 20,472 pupils in average daily attendance in 1942-43 and received $1,298,332 from the state for 1943-44. Total state apportionment to the county for 1943-44 for the 34,578 elementary pupils in average daily attendance was $2,286,777. Each year's state aid to a district, the association explained, is based on the district's average daily attendance for the preceding year.

California state law permits the maintenance of hundreds of very small and, from an operational standpoint, very costly elementary school districts. Throughout the state, 882 elementary districts had fewer than 20 children in average daily attendance in 1942-43. They carry on, in the main, because of the large sums the state provides, the association stated.

Don't forget to save and turn in all your waste paper. There is a drastic shortage!

Benefit To Returning Service-Men Included In Planning Of Center

(By the Committee)

"War is hell" was once said by a great military leader. It is a true statement, to be sure but includes more than the tragedies on the battle field. It includes not just the various circles of war, but today it includes the civilian circle as well. Just as our boys are actually fighting and giving their lives, we at home must realize as never before our opportunity and privilege to give our effort and energy toward improving our community to make this a clean, decent, peaceful place to live.

When our boys begin returning home it will take a great amount of understanding, patience and discipline, both mental and spiritual to help them get readjusted to help them back to normalcy and to help them enjoy home and community life. It is also just as necessary for the boys to understand us as for us to understand our boys if we are to enjoy this kind of community. So when our boys return home, let us anticipate that great problem by having something that all of us can do together, something useful and practical, something they can use and profit from and something we can use and benefit from.

The one common instrument to help each other get "acquainted all over again" is a place to play for all. So the Civic committee suggested to the community a memorial community recreation center, a recreation center with full-time directors, with a wholesome well-balanced program for all age groups to recreate a family fellowship through fun and frolic; not just outdoor and indoor sports, but also social, educational and cultural activities that all of us can have a share in, such as drama, crafts, dancing (folk and social), etc.

Let us not wait until the war is over to begin planning and working and giving for our boys who are paying a tremendous price for victory. Is a minimum of $10 too much to ask if it will make our boys glad and contented to be home? Don't put off giving — don't wait — don't forget. Give your money to Rollin Reed, manager, Bank of America, or call Mrs. Mead, B-4827, or Mrs. Muchmore, B-4725.

History Given Of Planning For Recreation Center

(By the Committee)

The Community-civic committee made a careful survey of the recreational needs in Ocean Beach and found that this had absolutely no adequate recreational facilities to meet the ever increasing needs of a growing population. We need more neighbohood play areas. Adequate indoor facilities for group recreation were woefully lacking, but the greatest demand was for some place to play for each member of the family with the family. Seemingly it was an impossible task, a dream never to be realized. The committee determined to find something in in the way of recreation for our community.

The committee met again to discuss the best ways and means to realize this need After many meetings and many discussions as well as many sub-committee meetings, it was decided to ask our city council to appropriate enough money to build a memorial recreation center. As we explained our need and presented a comprehensive plan to meet that need and volunteered to help finance it, the city council became vitally interested. Individually and collectively these good men, always alert and aware of the city's welfare, wholeheartedly supported the petition of this committee. Over 100 residents made their way to the city council chambers as tangible proof to our council that we were ready and willing to do all we could to realize our need. Fred Simpson, formerly on the city council and now with the Water Authority commission, became enthusiastically interested to such a degree that he made a motion to approve adequate recreational facilities for Ocean Beach.

After Simpson's resignation to receive the new appointment, G. C. Crary, the new councilman, took up the project with the same interest and enthusiasm and at a recent meeting of the city council, the motion was made to purchase property across the street north from the Ocean Beach elementary school. It is now city property to be used for a new playground area and to erect a fine building for indoor recreation. We can be proud of our city council, especially our mayor and our own councilman. Each man wanted to help Ocean Beach when it was realized that we were finally united and a new civic pride had been born.

The civic committee volunteered to raise $10,000 because we realize that we need a larger building to meet a larger need than in some other communities. The money that we raise in this campaign will be used in our own community and it is the hope of all of us that the city council will supplement our gift and give to us one of the loveliest recreation centers in all San Diego, one that the city can point to with pride, and that it may be a pattern by which the Recreation commission will be able to build other such recreation centers, that visitors coming from other parts of the United States will, in seeing our memorial recreation center, pay us the compliment of wishing that they too had one like it in their community.

The committee has and is doing their part, the city council certainly is doing theirs, the Recreation commission and department is wholeheartedly cooperating and now the community is asked to do their part. They, too, are showing the same kind of spirit that will make possible ultimate victory, but we need one more push to complete our job. There are some who have not yet given anything. We hope that they will not miss this marvelous community spirit. There are some who have not given as much as they could give. We are sure they want to do better, and there are still others who desire to give more. It is the kind of spirit that will continue to keep us united and to help us ascend to that high standard of community spirit that spells victory. Give your money to Rollin Reed in the Bank of America or call Mrs. Muchmore, B-4725.

County Has 7028 On Relief Rolls For Needy Aged

Demands for aid to the needy aged in San Diego county appear to be stabilizing, California Taxpayers' association stated today, analyzing case load trends in the county for the fiscal year just ended.

In July, 1943, there were 7,200 people on the old age rolls in the county, the association found. High point for the year was reached in September, 1943, with 7,244 persons receiving this kind of relief. For June, 1944, the rolls showed 7,028 persons receiving aid to the needy aged. June, 1944, payments in the county totalled $333,515, an average of $47.46 per person. For the year ending June 30, 1944, $4,081,811 was paid out in aid to the needy aged in the county.

Throughout the state, the needy aged received $88,646,372 for the fiscal year 1943-44, with 157,605 persons on the rolls for June, 1944.

"Under the present generous provisions of California law providing for aid to the needy aged, the statistics indicate that apparently all those older people who are in need are being cared for," the association stated.

With regard to the Service Ribbon awards, given for 500 or more hours, the names of those who have received their ribbons will be published in this column shortly. If there are any women who have served 500 or more hours and have not received their ribbon, kindly call Bayview 6101.

We still have a few ribbons to award. Will those women who have been notified of their awards come to our next monthly meeting, which will be held on Monday, September 11, at 1:30 p. m., in the Assembly of God church, corner Cape May and Ebers, and receive your ribbons?

We now have the Christmas boxes. The filling of these boxes is a major task and cannot be done by a few, we need everyone's cooperation. Last year we had a good showing from Ocean Beach. Let us do at least as good, if not better. If you would only realize the joy these boxes bring to the men, I am sure you would not hesitate to give a little gift towards filling one of these boxes.

The following articles have just been turned in to Mrs. Fraser's office: three quilts, 19 hospital shirts and one jig-saw puzzle gift wrapped.

The OPA price panel needs two volunteer workers for survey work here in Ocean Beach. If you have just a little spare time, here's something you can do during your shopping tour. For more information, kindly call Franklin 8891, Extension 54, Mrs. Carolyn MacFee.

Explain Procedure for Canning Boneless Chicken

The following procedure for canning boneless chicken is recommended by food technologists. Precook to the point where the meat is easily removed from the bones. Remove the skin and cut the fowl into regular pieces. Remove the bones leaving the meat in as large pieces as possible. Small pieces and meat scraped from back, ribs, and neck are kept for soup stock or creamed chicken. The bones and skin are also kept for soup stock.

The prepared meat is packed into clean dry pint or half-pint jars. Fill to one inch below the top of jar, leaving a little room for liquid. Add ½ teaspoonful of salt to each pint jar and hot broth from the cooking vessel to fill to within one inch of the top. Partially seal jars and process under 10 pounds pressure or 240 degrees Fahrenheit for 90 minutes. When the pressure falls to zero remove the jars and complete the seal.

The soup stock is strained through four layers of moist cheesecloth to remove the fat. The stock is filled into pint jars and pieces of liver and gizzard or a tablespoonful of rice or barley may be added. Partially seal the jars and process in pressure cooker 60 minutes at 10 pounds pressure. After jars are removed complete the seal.

All meats should be canned under steam pressure, though hot water bath has proved quite successful with some homemakers.

Tender Plants

Squashes are among the tenderest of plants. The seeds should be sown only after the ground is thoroughly warm. Sow in rich soil in the full sun, with 8 to 10 feet between the vine varieties and 3 to 5 feet for the bush sorts. The squash borer is the principal enemy and the best protection against it is to cover the vine with soil at several joints. It will take root where covered and limit the damage done by the borer. To enrich each hill in which squash seed are planted mix a tablespoon of balanced plant food with the soil.

U. S. War Prisoners Seek 'Escape' in Camp Doings

Yanks Like Plays and Develop Liking for Soccer Football, but Letters From Home Greatest Source of Cheer.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

It is not often that we get direct communication from Americans in Germany, and so I am not ashamed to say that when I perused a communication from that source, I did not at first recognize what the frequently used abbreviation POW stood for.

Comparatively few Americans know the meaning of those three letters; perhaps none know what they mean to the POW himself.

POW is prisoner of war. According to the latest figures I have from the war department there are now 41,234 American soldiers, sailors, marines, merchant seamen held by the enemy!

The officials of the Red Cross know exactly what the conditions are under which those prisoners move and live and have their being in Allied prison camps in Germany or in the more than 40 hospitals for Allied wounded in the Reich or occupied countries. They have regular reports from the International Red Cross representatives who visit the camp regularly. The Red Cross says in effect: "So far as we know, the Germans have treated American prisoners in accordance with the Geneva agreement.'

That is all it says.

But even if the Germans live up to both the spirit and the letter of the Geneva agreement, the lot of the prisoner of war is not to be envied. Recently, I studied some of the newspapers issued by men in the prison camps. Some have been released for publication. Others have not. Not that those withheld revealed any dark secrets of suffering. Quite the contrary. They simply prove what Kipling said about men who live in barracks not growing up to be plaster saints, and some of the humor might be a little, shall we say, unsaintly.

The reason for this is expressed in the word escape. There are two kinds of escape which a prisoner thinks about. One is a safe get-away through the barbed wire and past the machine guns and quick-trigger sentinels. If he is wise, he doesn't spend too much time on such cogitation. The official advice to POWs is "don't try it."

The other kind of escape is defined by Webster as, "mental distraction or relief from the bondage of reality or routine; as, literature of escape."

The somewhat highly seasoned humor of some of the jokes and cartoons in the prisoners' papers are, technically speaking, "literature of escape," — this and the description of things they do to provide escape from the monotony of prison life.

Yank Ingenuity Shows In Stage Productions

As always, the drama provides one of the easiest and most effective mental distractions and I am told that the time, effort and ingenuity that is put into the learning, producing, staging and costuming of plays by these men is remarkable.

"The Kriegie Times," issued by the American airmen in Stalag Luft III, in Sagan, Germany, which I have before me as I write, is perhaps not typical because it was an edition especially for the home folks. But it has a story on page one headed "theater" which begins with the statement which started me off on this topic. It says, "The Kriegie (local nickname for war prisoner) is assured of 'escape' in the theater." Then it explains that in order to accommodate the whole camp in an auditorium which seats only 20 per cent of the members, five performances of each play are given. And they include real drama.

The article records as recent productions that sure-fire, never-die farce, "Charlie's Aunt"; "Our Town," the popular American play, nostalgic and easy to stage because it requires no scenery; "Tobacco Road," a popular, earthy piece with a run longer than the retreat from Stalingrad; "The Man Who Came To Dinner," whose appeal perhaps lies in the fact that "the man" couldn't get away, either; and "Flieger Frolics," an original musical comedy. (Flieger is flyer in German.)

"Female costumes," it is explained, "are hired through German sources when possible, usually fabricated out of sheets and men's clothing."

The newspaper (a typewritten sheet) says that "scenery, furniture and stage properties have been constructed from wooden Red Cross boxes and burlap, covered with magazine paper and painted with cold water paint."

In another item, the paper comments that "the handy man is the hero of the camp."

Of course, there are sports, but limited ground space makes baseball impossible in this particular camp since a homer over the fence is irretrievable. The boys have learned to like soccer, learned from their English comrades, as a form of what they call "mass murder." Softball is a favorite sport, and with the arrival of fencing foils, fencing.

There are some classes, but they are not dealt with in detail.

Another nostalgic diversion was described although not admitted as such, since no note of sentimentality enters the sheet. It was a baby contest, the entrants photographs supplied, presumably, by wives from home. A "Miss Stalag Luft III" was later to be selected from the pictures of wives and sweethearts.

The schedule for a typical day runs like this:

POW's Day Leisurely But Monotonous

The day starts at 10 a. m. with roll-call (following a breakfast of coffee, bread and jam). Then calisthenics, showers for the few designated that day (they go in lots of 24), classes, library, cooking schedules (the men take turns at the culinary arts). Mail (if there is any) is distributed at noon. Last roll-call comes at four p. m., then a few turns around the perimeter of the camp, supper, bridge and poker (for cigarettes). Then "some good talk, much foolish dreaming before midnight sends the Kriegie to bed with the hope ever that the new day brings peace."

Of course, in this little typewritten journal which has had to pass the German censor there is only here and there a hint of certain inner feelings toward the hosts; one note on the showing of a German film speaks of a "none too spellbound audience."

It is difficult to get an intimate view of a prisoner's life from these brief notes or, indeed, from the letters the prisoners write home. But those persons who have read all the confidential reports and also many letters passed on to them by relations tell me two things: one, that, generally speaking, American prisoners in German camps are not badly treated and are not in want; second, the first months are the hardest. Most prisoners build up some kind of "escape" mechanism and manage to keep up their spirits and morale by adapting themselves to their environment.

Naturally, the question is frequently asked: "What are we doing for our prisoners in Germany?"

The thing they want most is provided for most of them—letters from home. The next are the food packages which are paid for by the army, packed by volunteer workers and shipped by the Red Cross from their four shipping centers, two in New York, one in Philadelphia and one in St. Louis. Most of the packages, assembled like motor cars on a moving line, are packed by loving hands—that group which bears the scars of war as deeply as the combatants themselves, and described prosaically in army language as "the next of kin."

These packages go, one for each prisoner, every week.

The prisoners also can receive personal packages every 60 days. They get books and other prescribed articles.

The Red Cross has eight ships of its own which, up until recently, have been landing regularly at Marseille, where packages have been shipped in sealed cars to Switzerland. These goods went through unmolested. Lately some of the shipments have been made to Lisbon and re-shipped on smaller shuttle vessels. The disruption of traffic in Germany has recently interfered with the system. Other routes are being planned.

Special diet packages go to our men in German POW hospitals.

As soon as a prisoner is captured in Germany he is taken to a transit camp where a Red Cross "capture kit" is waiting. Since he usually doesn't take his baggage with him into Germany, especially if he arrives by parachute, he gets brush, comb, razor and such necessities.

Many of the German prisoners of war captured in Normandy have volunteered to help with the harvest in Great Britain.

Families Like Meals With a Relish
(See Recipes Below)

Bit of Spice

"I've saved many a meal just by serving it with a good relish," homemakers often tell me.

This is the season to put up those small, precious jarfuls of sweetness and spice to go with meat-thrifty meals. There needn't be many if your sugar rations are low, but do fit a few of them in your canning budget and classify them as morale builders.

Pickles, chutneys, catsups, conserves and relishes add that bit of something special to the meal. They're easy to put up because the sugar, spices and vinegar in them act as preservatives.

First on the list is a tasty blueberry relish that goes with mild-flavored meats like lamb or veal.

Blueberry Relish.
4 cups blueberries (prepared)
7 cups sugar
½ cup vinegar
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare blueberries, crush thoroughly or grind 1½ quarts fully ripe, cultivated blueberries. Add ¼ to 1 teaspoon cinnamon, cloves, allspice or any desired combination of spices.

Measure sugar, prepared blueberries and vinegar into a large kettle. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Skim; pour quickly. Paraffin hot relish at once.

Chili sauce has carried a high point value since rationing came into effect. It would be a good idea to put it up at home so as to save points for other canned food.

Chili Sauce.
1 gallon tomatoes
2 cups onions
2 cups sweet red pepper
1 pod hot red pepper
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 tablespoon celery seed
3 tablespoons mixed spices
2½ cups vinegar

Skin tomatoes before chopping. Chop all vegetables before measuring. Tie mixed spices in a bag. Mix all ingredients except spice bag and vinegar. Add spice bag after mixture has boiled 30 minutes. Cook until very thick, then add vinegar and boil until there seems to be no more "free" liquid. Taste and add more seasoning, if necessary. Pour, while boiling hot, into hot, sterile jars and seal at once.

Tomato Ketchup.
1 peck tomatoes
3 sweet red peppers
1 pod hot red pepper
4 tablespoons salt
2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon celery seed
2 teaspoons mustard seed
1 tablespoon whole allspice
2 sticks cinnamon
3 cups vinegar

Lynn Says

Pickles are crisper: If you put up your pickles this way:

1. Use a pure cider vinegar. Be sure that you get a good product, neither old nor adulterated.
2. Follow every direction, every measurement, and do every step carefully. Cucumber pickles may be made either by a long or short process, but the longer process yields a better pickle.
3. When slicing several kinds of fruit or vegetable for pickling, have all of them about the same thickness.
4. Too much spice destroys both flavor and color. Use the ingredients in tested recipes only.

Wash and chop tomatoes and peppers. Simmer until soft. Press through a fine sieve. Cook rapidly until reduced to about one-half. Add sugar, salt and spices (tied in bag) and boil until thick. Add vinegar about 5 minutes before removing from fire. Pour into hot, sterile jars and seal at once.

Two of the most popular types of pickles get a place in today's column. You'll like putting up both for variety's sake:

Bread and Butter Pickles.
3 quarts sliced cucumbers
3 onions
½ cup salt
3 cups vinegar
1 cup water
3 cups brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
2 tablespoons mustard seed
1 teaspoon turmeric
½ tablespoon celery seed
1 pod hot red pepper
1 piece horseradish

Mix cucumbers, onions (sliced) and salt. Let stand 5 hours. Drain. Boil vinegar, water, salt, sugar and seasonings 3 minutes. Add cucumbers and onions and simmer 10 to 20 minutes. Do not boil. Pack into hot, sterile jars and seal at once.

Dill Pickles.
35 to 40 fresh cucumbers
2 tablespoons mixed spices
½ pound dill
2 cups salt
2 gallons water
2 cups vinegar

Wash and dry cucumbers. Put a layer of dill and ½ of the spices in a stone jar. Add the cucumbers. Put the remaining spices and dill on top of the cucumbers. Boil salt, water and vinegar 2 minutes. Cool to room temperature and pour over cucumbers. Cover with a plate weighted down to hold the cucumbers in the brine. Keep at an even temperature (80 to 85 degrees). Remove scum each day. The pickles are ready for canning when they are crisp, uniform in color and well-flavored with dill. This usually requires 2 to 4 weeks. Pack the cured pickles into hot jars, cover with hot brine and seal at once. If the pickles are to be stored a long time, process them in water bath for 15 minutes at a simmering temperature.

If you like fruity pickles, you'll like this one:

Peach Pickles.
1 gallon peaches
7 cups sugar
1 piece ginger root
2 sticks cinnamon
1 tablespoon whole allspice
1 teaspoon whole cloves
2 cups water
3 cups vinegar

Clingstone peaches are best for pickling, although freestones may be used. Pare hard-ripe fruit. Leave whole. Boil 3 cups sugar, the spices (tied in a bag) and vinegar for 3 minutes. Add 10 to 12 peaches at a time. Simmer until they are tender. Let stand in syrup 12 to 24 hours. Pack peaches into hot jars. Add remaining sugar to syrup and cook to desired thickness. Pour over peaches. Process 5 minutes in hot water bath.

Retard Fruit Drop

Hundreds of thousands additional bushels of sound fruit of better color, size, and quality may be harvested with smaller picking crews because of prevention of preharvest drop by spraying or dusting of several million apple and pear trees with hormone growth regulators. Dr. L. B. Batjer of the U. S. bureau of plant industry reports that in 1940, the first year of commercial use of these sprays, approximately 35,000 acres of apples were treated. In 1941 about 50,000 acres of apples and in 1942 between 75,000 and 80,000 acres of apples and pears were sprayed. In 1943 more than 100,000 acres were treated, according to estimates based on sales.

Ten of the world's greatest writers have together written ten short novels to illustrate Hitler's career of flouting the moral sanctions of the Ten commandments. Each and every one of these incidents is fundamentally authentic. These ten short novels are banded together in one book—"The Ten Commandments," and after reading stories that have seeped out of occupied countries, this collection seems not at all incredible. It is a good book for your future library.

CHAS. W. CLAYES DIES SATURDAY AT AGE 89

Charles W. Clayes, 89, who had made his home for 20 years with his daughter, Mrs. Vernal C. Hunsaker, 4452 Orchard ave., passed away at a San Diego hospital Saturday morning, Sept. 2. PLANS COMPLETED FOR PREACHING MISSION AT EPISCOPAL CHURCH

"All is ready for the visit of Capt. C. Conder of the 'Church Army,' who will be in this community for eight days at the Trinity Episcopal church, where he will conduct a 'Preaching Mission' each evening at 7:30 p.m., beginning Sunday, Sept. 10 and through Saturday night, Sept. 16. The church is located at the corner of Sunset Cliffs and Brighton ave., and Capt. Conder will be special preacher at the 11 o'clock service Sept. 10, as well as the preacher the following Sunday, Sept. 17.

"Remember that the Mission is for all people and everyone is invited, both adults and children. Capt. Condor is a fine preacher and those who wish to draw apart and learn more about God can do so by attending the mission service each evening. There will be a service for children each afternoon at 3:45 p.m., for those who are unable to attend in the evening. The service in the evening will last one hour and then those who wish can adjourn with Capt. Conder into the Parish house and ask questions, along with having a bit of refreshments.

"Be sure to make this a date for the whole week, for we can assure you that the opportunity afforded is one worth much effort on your part to see that you and your friends come out to be present to hear the 'Church Army' man speak about God and the part which we have to play in His world.

"Remember 'Preaching Mission'—Sept. 10 to 17, Trinity Episcopal church every evening at 7:30 p.m."

Our Secret Weapon

IN HIS allegory, "The Pilgrim's Progress," Bunyan tells how Christian, when going through the valley of the shadow of death, found enemies that were immune to the sword with which he had vanquished Apollyon, so "he was forced to put up his Sword, and betake himself to another weapon called All-prayer." When the fiends "were come even almost at him, he cried out with a most vehement voice, I will walk in the strength of the Lord God; so they gave back, and came no further." Christian's sword was of no avail against the blasphemies whispered so subtly in his ear that he mistook them for his own thoughts, but the weapon of prayer brought him safely through the ordeal.

One who lived in England during the worst of the blitz, speaking of the wonderful protection experienced by those who sought the way of escape through prayer, said it was difficult to understand unless one were there, but in their darkest hour it seemed the whole nation lived in prayer! Thus did those materially unprepared for war find themselves equipped with a secret weapon of defense. So spiritually empowered were they with courage and a consciousness of nearness to God that they could prove to the world it is possible for civilization to survive the barbarous onslaught of savage modern warfare. . . .

Spiritual power accompanies understanding now as it did when Jesus sent forth seventy of his students to preach and heal, telling them, "Behold, I give unto you power . . . over all the power of the enemy: and nothing shall by any means hurt you" (Luke 10: 19). No weapon of the carnal mind can withstand the Christ-power operative today through enlightened prayer. In the light of Truth the carnal mind, which "is enmity against God" (Romans 8:7), is seen to be a lie, a deception which vanishes before the Mind of Christ.

The rulers of the darkness of deception hold no sway in the realm of light. Their effort, therefore, is to prevent the use of our secret weapon of prayer. Unerring in aim, instant in action, infinite in range, and ever available, prayer is as irresistible in attack as it is invulnerable in defense. Nor can the enemy prevent its use by the Christian soldier. One must guard against resistance of the carnal mind to his use of prayer. Evil would disarm before it attacks, but the very conflict arms the righteous and girds him for victory. . . .

Jesus taught us the use of our secret weapon when he said (Matthew 6:6): "When thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly." Writing of this secret but effective prayer in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy says (p. 15), "The closet typifies the sanctuary of Spirit, the door of which shuts out sinful sense but lets in Truth, Life, and Love." She continues: "In the quiet sanctuary of earnest longings, we must deny sin and plead God's allness. We must resolve to take up the cross, and go forth with honest hearts to work and watch for wisdom, Truth, and Love." And she says further, "The Master's injunction is, that we pray in secret and let our lives attest our sincerity."

Those who have learned to use this weapon of prayer are winning priceless victories. Through prayer, the risen Christ comes again through doors which fear has closed, with the sublime message of triumph, "Peace be unto you."—The Christian Science Monitor.

Stork Busy Bird At San Diego's Zoo This Year

The proverbial stork has been a good provider at the San Diego zoo this spring and summer, and has made up for the lack of imports which were halted at the outbreak of war.

A check with authorities of the San Diego Zoological society showed that among the newest arrivals are two of the lesser Pandas, which are being welcomed at the Panda house by their three brothers and sisters born several years ago. This Panda family came originally from the Burma-Southern China sector in the pre-Pearl Harbor days, and is one of the most popular exhibits at the zoo.

Another prize baby is the young Chinese Muntjac or barking deer, the smallest of this family, standing about 18 inches high when fully grown. The nickname comes from the fact that these when excited make a noise like that of a barking dog.

Also added to the collection were a Grants zebra, an eland, a giraffe and a hippo. Among the primates, the zoo now has babies in the families of the smooth-headed weaper, Assam Entellis, Anubis baboon, two baby leopards and many other lusty youngsters.

A valuable addition was the pair of ashy-headed native Chilean geese, which were exports from the Concepcion zoo in Chile.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Normally there are 20 per cent more tire failures during the summer months than others. Tests have shown that at a temperature of 90 degrees tires wear out twice as fast as at 60 degrees and that at 100 degrees they wear out five times as fast as at 40 degrees.

Even with production being restored at Far East rubber plantations and our synthetic plants working at peak, authorities believe there will be a tight rubber situation for some time following the end of the war.

MR. WINKLE GOES TO WAR

By THEODORE PRATT

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Forty-four-year-old Wilbert Winkle, who operates a repair shop in the alley back of his home, is notified by his draft board that he is in 1-A. He breaks the bad news to his domineering wife, Amy, who now hates to part with him. Mr. Winkle is sent to Camp Squibb, a thousand miles from home, where he meets Mr. Tinker, a man of his own age who wants to avenge a nephew killed at Pearl Harbor. After graduating from Motor Mechanics school, Mr. Winkle goes home on a furlough. Amy hardly knows him, and his dog, Penelope, barks at him furiously. A short time after returning to camp both Mr. Winkle and Mr. Tinker are en route for a point of embarkation.

CHAPTER X

Between Mr. Tinker and the irreducible fact that they were actually off to one of the various wars going on, Mr. Winkle didn't sleep much that first night. He lay there precariously on the edge of the berth trying to adjust himself to the situation and regretting a little that he had not taken the chance of getting out of the Army when he had the opportunity.

This was, as the saying went, it.

This was what he had trained for. He was going to where battles were being fought. He was going to help fight them. The realization struck him so forcibly that he nearly fell out of the berth, especially when Mr. Tinker gave him an extra hard push.

Then, again, he endeavored to look on the bright side of it.

He was a hardened soldier, wasn't he?

Well, maybe not hard, but with plenty of preparation.

The additional months as a member of a service company had brought the confidence of experience.

They had brought a Corporal's stripes, and finally those of a full-fledged Sergeant. He and Mr. Tinker were a team, it having been found that Mr. Tinker was good at the heavier work, while he supplied a little more skill at figuring it out.

The day they didn't stop, but kept right on marching up the gangplank and on to the ship, he felt betrayed, cheated and fooled.

He couldn't overlook the drama of it, either. Here they were, several hundred men in a special train, rushing to an unknown destination to save the nation. He knew that crack streamliners were sidetracked for them. Everything made way for them. Even if you were hurrying to risk your life, that gave you a sense of importance.

He fell asleep on this thought, dreaming that he was sinking in wide waters and that he grasped at a tiny straw to save himself.

Mr. Winkle expected to be marched right on a ship as soon as they reached their embarkation port two days later. But there seemed to be no such hurry as that which had brought them here.

They were given physical examinations, their equipment was inspected, and orders were issued to keep their canteens filled to the mouth.

Thus readied, they were assembled one morning and marched out through an entrance in the brick wall. They made their way along a road at the side of the harbor, in which many ships, all painted an indifferent gray, were moored. Mr. Winkle had never seen a real ship before, and was impressed with their size. He wondered which would be theirs.

They were called to a halt beside the high wall of one of the larger vessels.

Orders were shouted. To his amazement and relief, they started marching back again to the staging area. This had been merely practice.

The man next to him said, "That was a close one."

Each day after that they went through the same process. The third time it was repeated there were complaints.

Even Mr Winkle asked these questions and came not to believe in any of the marches to the ship. He took it for granted that each time he arrayed himself in his full equipment and sweated to the pier that he would turn right around again and come back.

The day they didn't stop, but kept right on marching, up the gangplank and on to the ship, he felt betrayed, cheated and fooled.

To Mr. Tinker at his side he observed, "Well, I guess we've burned our gangplanks behind us."

Mr. Tinker stared at him, scowling to get his meaning. Though he didn't know the true quotation, he appeared to find something wrong with Mr. Winkle's version, or at least with the way he spoke.

"What's the matter, Pop?" he asked. "You seasick already?"

More men poured on to the ship, and still more marched along the pier toward her. Mr. Winkle, Mr. Tinker and ten others were shown below to their private stateroom. Instead of bunks, a large cabin had been stripped of its beds and other luxurious furnishings and canvas hammocks slung in tiers of three from a wooden framework.

Mr. Winkle drew one of the top hammocks, so close to the ceiling that it made him feel like a fly sticking there. They stowed their gear and investigated the quarters. One of the men opened a door and stood, frozen in his tracks.

"Come here," he said in an awed voice, "and see if you see what I'm looking at."

They crowded around him, peering over his shoulders, and saw a gleaming bathroom.

"Holy cow!" another man cried. "Ain't our suite sweet?"

The ship would be totally blacked out at night, which meant no smoking on deck.

No cigarette butt or scrap of paper was to be thrown overboard lest it leave a trail which could be followed.

In case the ship was hit and had to be abandoned, they were to slide down landing nets which would be lowered, and not jump overboard.

If a man fell overboard, the ship could not risk stopping to pick him up.

These instructions caused no evident alarm. Normally, Mr. Winkle should have had an acute attack of imagination right then and there. But it didn't come, as it hadn't lately in the learning that a great and solicitous mother, the Army, looked after his every interest. All he had to do was to trust it, obey orders, and, most important of all, keep his mouth shut.

The ship sailed that night while some of them were asleep and some of them were still adjusting their bodies to the hammocks. Mr. Winkle, listening, heard the deep throb of the engines. He put his hand against the ceiling and felt a thrumming there. The smell of oil became stronger. A low, sleepy murmuring came from other men. A forward movement became perceptible.

That was all.

No one spoke.

In the morning they were at sea. Their own and dozens of other ships scratched a glassy mirror with continual, untired zigzags. The convoy stretched into the distance as far as the eye could see. At its outer edges they could make out destroyers and other warcraft, which kept up a worried pacing back and forth, in and out, and sometimes around in wide sweeps and circles.

It was heartening to see them and their fellow troopships. Though they knew that death was possible any instant from the sky or from beneath the water, it seemed just as impossible that anything could touch them.

Soldiers were everywhere on the ship, the last inch of space being crowded with them. If they had little privacy before, they had none now. It was barely possible to step anywhere without walking on somebody, or putting your foot into the middle of a crap game.

Somehow they managed to move around, for the most part good-naturedly. Mr. Winkle marveled at what he and other men had been conditioned to stand. He began to have a respect for the extent that man would let himself be abused for the opportunity of traveling a long way to get killed. Despite its inconvenience and tragedy, there was a decided element of joy in war, of virile men becoming braves and setting out on the exciting adventures of the warpath.

The favorite pastime, while standing or sitting on deck, or leaning against the rail, was speculating on where they were going.

"Australia," was proposed, "and I aim to see one of them kangaroos jumping around with her kid in her pocket."

"No, sir," another differed. "If it was Australia, they'd told us. My cousin went out there last year and he knew from the time he left. He ain't seen any kangaroos yet, but he says the people there are hep-cats who cook with gas."

"The Solomons," a third man said. "We took them over, didn't we? We're being sent out to hold them. I had it straight from the top kick—"

"Something tells me," another man interrupted, "we're going to be dropped off in Hawaii. I always wanted to go there, and now is it."

He was hooted down on the basis that no such luck could be theirs.

It was Sergeant Winkle's considered opinion that they were going to New Guinea.

"What they got there, Pop?" he was asked. "What's your book say?"

"Cannibals," he told them. He thought his guidebook had said that.

"Me," said Mr. Tinker, "I don't care where it is just so there's Japs."

On the fourth day, while sitting on the deck with his back against the rail, Mr. Winkle nearly jumped out of his life belt when there was a loud explosion forward.

He was lurching to his feet and had reached a crouching position before he realized that the gun crews were holding firing practice.

He sank back down again, seeing other men following suit.

The guns kept on chattering, sending up shells to burst high in the air at different levels. From the other ships they could see the same practice going on. It was fascinating to watch, and the noise and smell of burning gunpowder added to their sense of security.

In the midst of the racket Mr. Winkle was startled to hear his name being called.

"Hi, Pop!"

Looking up, he saw Freddie Tindall. In back of him were Jack and several more of the original Springville contingent.

"Hello, Mr. Winkle," Jack greeted him. The boy's eyes twinkled, and he spoke as if they were meeting casually on Maple Avenue.

"This," said Mr. Winkle, struggling to his feet, "is quite a place to have a reunion."

They held it, nevertheless, in the middle of the Pacific Ocean, pumping one another's hands and yelling above the noise of the guns. Freddie cried, "We've got more than this! Hey, Alphabet! Alphabet!"

In a moment the wizened little Sergeant pushed his way down the deck. The first thing he saw was Mr. Winkle's stripes with the "T" below them. Without raising his voice, but still making himself heard he lectured:

"I been in the Army eighteen years. You been in eight months, and you rate with me. We ain't going to win no war that way. And look what I got in my machine-gun crew. Him," he pointed at Jack, "and him," he indicated Freddie. "All they can do is outshoot any of them guys working them pump-guns up there. Where do you think we're headed for, Pop?"

The convoy stretched into the distance far as you could see.

Mr. Winkle's reply was lost in the blast of the antiaircraft guns.

"Australia!" Jack yelled.

"New Zealand!" Freddie shouted.

"I told you it was India," the Alphabet said. "I had it straight from an officer as the One-A lowdown . . ."

Mr. Winkle saw that Sergeant Czeideskrowski had become one of them and, what was more, they had become one with him.

He was warmed by this, and that the others were on the ship with him. It seemed to make it still safer, and the sea smoother and even more peaceful.

Yet still it wasn't quite the thing about war he sensed and for which he continued to search.

There was a stir among the ships of the convoy.

Messages were exchanged by blinker and flags.

Mr. Winkle's ship and five supply vessels began to take erratic courses.

It seemed as if something was going to happen after all, that a submarine had been detected. The men, lining the rails, watched and held their breaths.

Maneuvering smoothly, the six ships detached themselves from the main body of the convoy, setting off at an angle to it. At the same time three destroyers rode in the same direction, herding them. Deep-throated whistles said goodby.

It was clear now that they were going on a mission of their own. Rumor ran like fire through the ship.

They were a special task force.

An urgent call had come for them from some harassed point.

Plans had been changed.

Land was soon to be sighted.

They would see action at any moment.

'FULL EMPLOYMENT' AFTER THE WAR

IN WASHINGTON THE theorists whose announced purpose has been, and still is, to "make over" America, tell us that, following the close of the war, private enterprise will be given an opportunity to demonstrate whether or not it will still work. If, when peace comes, private enterprise can provide "full employment," the profit system will be allowed to continue, but if not it must give way to the planned economy of the theorists.

Just what is meant by "full employment?" With the demands of a global war to meet we have had more than 50 million employed workers and another 10 million in the armed services. We have heard much of manpower shortage; industries have competed wildly in the labor market; women, some millions of them, have been asked to, and have, filled men's jobs. Must private enterprise in peace time provide from 50 to 60 million jobs if it is to be allowed to continue as America's economic system?

In 1939, one year before Pearl Harbor, we were producing much in the way of war equipment for England and for our own war preparations. We were then told the depression difficulties had been solved. In 1939 34 million workers had jobs. That condition followed an expenditure of some 20 billion dollars on the part of the government in an effort to create a market for American farms and factories.

Following the close of the war, and before the armed forces are disbanded, the back to the home movement on the part of women workers will probably reduce the employables to around 50 million. That would be 16 million more than those having jobs in 1939. That is what private industry is supposed to care for, or else.

In 1943 the government permitted United States Steel to retain, as a rainy day surplus out of which to provide peacetime jobs, enough to meet a one day payroll for all of its wartime employees. What was true of Steel was true of other major industries.

Our Washington theorists have, and are continuing to, make it impossible for private enterprise to do the job they say it must do if the private enterprise system is to be allowed to live. It would seem we have a choice of retaining the theorists or the private enterprise system.

FREE ENTERPRISE AND STANDARD OF LIVING

IT WAS, I BELIEVE, IN 1906 that Chrysler, then an Iowa railroad superintendent, bought his first automobile, for which he paid more than $5,000. To start that car he had to get out and turn a crank; its lights for night driving were kerosene lamps; to protect the occupants from the inclemencies of the weather, curtains could be buttoned to frames on the side; if fortunate the driver might attain a speed of as much as 25 miles an hour.

Before the war started a far better car could be bought for less than one seventh the price Chrysler paid; a car with all the gadgets that makes for the convenience and luxury of driving.

The difference to the consumer, the better car at but a fraction of the cost, was produced by the American system of competitive free enterprise.

Competitive free enterprise brought quality up and price down to where cars were possible for 30 million homes and farms. It put America, urban and rural, on wheels behind an internal combustion engine.

Over the past 40 years competitive free enterprise in the automobile field did far more than produce better and cheaper cars. It created jobs, better than five million of them. Jobs that meant the maintenance of homes. Jobs at ever-increasing wages. Jobs that provided a market for the produce of the farm.

In no other country, at this or any other time, has there been such a record of progress, such an ever-increasing standard of living, as we have had in the United States. Despite the evidence to the contrary Washington theorists attempt to tell us our competitive free enterprise system has failed, and government, with its regimentation and regulations, should take over our production. To them evidence means, nothing as compared to their theories.

THERE IS A "know how" to the building of ships and airplanes, to the making of guns and tanks, to the production of chemicals and munitions. Such "know how" is recognized by the Manpower commission and the army and indispensable men in such lines are not called to the colors. Food is a first essential of war. Without food all other war production would be valueless. There is a needed "know how" in the production of food, but this was not recognized and too many farm boys were drafted.

WEDDING HELD IN HOME OF MR. AND MRS. L. J. BLY

Margaret Louise Sikes became the bride of James Hellems, of San Francisco, Calif,, at a prettily appointed wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Bly, 4383 Montalvo ave., Ocean Beach, the evening of Aug. 30.

Miss Sikes, a former employee of Consolidated Vultee, San Diego division, formerly lived near Brownwood ,Texas, coming to San Diego to make her home for the "Duration," following Pearl Harbor.

Mr. Hellems, with the navy, has seen considerable service in many of the islands, having had many harrowing experiences. He is now stationed at San Francisco as a navy storekeeper.

Rev. Edward Radcliff of San Diego performed the double-rnig ceremony before a large casement window and flower arrangement in pink gladioli.

Miss Sikes was dressed in a gold suit, wearing black accessories and an orchid corsage, while her bridesmaid, Miss K. L. Jordan, wore a brown suit with fuchsia accessories and a corsage of red fuchsia roses.

Mr. Hellems had as his best man Harold Fields, formerly of Oklahoma City, and personal friend of the bride. L. J. Bly gave Louise in marriage at the ceremony, in the absence of her father, E. B. Sikes, of Brownwood, Texas.

About 30 friends attended the wedding and later a large party at the Riverlawn cafeteria, where a wedding supper was served.

Wedding of Jesse Brunkest Held in Methodist Church

Point Loma Methodist church was the scene Sunday afternoon of a charming wedding ceremony, at which Jessie H. Brunkest Jr., AM3/c, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brunkest, 4375 Saratoga ave., and Gertie Louise Watson, daughter of Mrs. Ella Watson of Shawnee, Okla., were united in marriage. Rev. James R. Roberts officiated at the 2 o'clock ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Frank Watson. Floral wedding decorations included baskets of white dahlias, white gladioli and blue delphinium.
